Those who last reported in 2003:

George Armistead, Wain Barnes, Karen Darcy, Sue Hamilton, Kevin Heffernan, Jim Highsaw, Marshall Iliff, Linda Prentice, Andy Rabin, Bob Schaefer, Bob Solem (These individuals will be dropped from the next List Report unless they submit their list totals for 2008).

This is the 22nd year that the Maryland List Report has been compiled and published. The list was begun in 1986 by Harvey Mudd, was taken on by Phil Davis in the early 1990s, and then was passed on to Norm Saunders with the 2001 List Report. We sincerely hope that the list is taken in the vein in which it is meant—a way to have fun with our listing mania. If some have stopped reporting their lists because they feel the competition has become too intense, please understand that this is for fun and that we would love to see you return. We're in the middle of a generational switch and we hope that all of you, young and not so young, hang in there and watch the evolving skills of so many fine young birders here in Maryland as well as getting into the excitement of the race to be the first birder to reach 400 species in Maryland.

Maryland/DC List Report, 2007

2007 was, as Mark Hoffman so ably put it, a return to the norm, following several fantastic years. Best birds were probably the Thick-billed Murre at Ocean City in February and the Say's Phoebe in Montgomery County in September. There were lots of great "catch-up" birds this year though, for those not at the pinnacle of the State list: Cave Swallow, Long-eared Owl, Bicknell's Thrush, Calliope Hummingbird, Eurasian Collared Dove, Band-rumped Storm-Petrel, and Arctic Tern, to name only a few.

In the Maryland Life List this year, we're STILL waiting for our first 400 Club birder. Paul O'Brien (Montgomery County) added two new species this year to move to 399! Close behind him, both at 397 species, are Mark Hoffman (Carroll County) and Jim Stasz (Calvert County). Virginian Paul Pisano continues to hold down the 4th spot on the list, at 385 species. Top tally for MD Year Birds was by Jim Stasz, with 328 species, followed by Kevin Graff (Baltimore County), with 305, and by newcomer Mikey Lutmerding (Allegany County) with 303. Following this group were Jim Brighton (Talbot County), with 296 species, Dave Powell (Montgomery County), with 292, and Bill Hubick (Anne Arundel) with 290. The coveted "Maryland 300 Club" have added seven new folks this year, accounting for 94 of our current reporters. The "All-Time 300 Club," the list of folks who have ever reported totals of over 300 species in Maryland, now stands at 120 members, made up of Maryland's past and present top birders. Those reporting the most new birds added to their state list this year include Carol McCollough (Talbot County), with 10 species, and Joy Bowen (Montgomery County), Derek Richardson (Prince George's County), and Fred Shaffer (Anne Arundel County), all adding 8 new species.

Rob Hilton (Montgomery County) continues to hold down the top spot on the District of Columbia Life List, with 270 species, followed by Paul Pisano with 265, Gail Mackiernan (Montgomery County) with 248, and Barry Cooper (Montgomery County) with 247. Highest counts for 2007 in DC were Gary Allport (DC) with 181, Paul Pisano with 179, and Greg Butcher (Montgomery County), with 158 species.

In the Maryland Yard List category, the highest "Home" list is held by Philadelphian Harry Armistead, with 266 species from his weekend hangout in Talbot County, followed by Jim Stasz, who has 219 species at or from his Calvert County yard (including a large chunk of the Chesapeake Bay!). In the "Work/Other" category, the leaders are Kyle Rambo (St. Mary's County), with 294 species on the grounds of the Patuxent Naval Air Station, Patty Craig (St. Mary's County), with 266 species on her 2nd home, Point Lookout State Park, and by Dave Webb (Harford County), with his 224 species on Aberdeen Proving Grounds property. Highest 2007 count in the Maryland Home/Work/Other Yard list was Jeff Shenot (Prince George's County), with 188 species, followed by Harry Armistead, with 159 species.

New reporter Gary Allport leads the "Home" category of the DC Yard List, with 90 species, while Norm Saunders has 88 species from 15 years of rambling through the parks of Capitol Hill, for the top "Work/Other" DC list.

The popularity of the Maryland Total Tick List continues to grow, with 33 individuals now reporting their total tick (the sum of their sighting lists for all 23 counties). These folks had to have a total tick of at least 2,300, an average of 100 species per county. Top lister is Jim Stasz, with a county average of 267 species and the only total tick in excess of 6,000, followed by Bob Ringler (Carroll County), with an average of 234 species per county, and Marshall Iliff (Anne Arundel, then California, then Massachusetts) with his average of 220 species. Top total tick honors for 2007 go once again to Bill Hubick, with an average of 132 species per county this past year, followed by John Hubbell, averaging 125 species. The purpose of the Total Tick List is to demonstrate a breadth of experience finding bird species across the entire state of Maryland.

Jim Stasz's specialty, the Maryland All-County List, also known by many as the County Closeout List, is led, of course, by Jim Stasz, who has seen 180 species in all 23 counties. He's followed by Bob Ringler, with 127 closeouts, and by John Hubbell, with 120. Jim Green (Montgomery County) reports an amazing 43 closeouts in 2007, followed by Bill Hubick with 35.

George Jett (Charles County) now leads the Birds Photographed in Maryland List, with 370 species, followed closely by Jim Stasz with 360 species and rapidly closing Bill Hubick, who has photographed 328 bird species in Maryland. In 2007, George Jett photographed a remarkable 193 species, followed by Kurt Schwarz (Howard County) who captured 62 species.

I'm leaving the top county listers for you to discover on your own. Browse the county lists of listers to your heart's content. Following are most of the personal highlights and comments sent to me this year. All rude comments have been deleted (just kidding—there were none!).

Gary Allport, with his first report to us, notes that he really wanted to see 200 species last year in the District of Columbia but wound up with ONLY 181 species for the year, grabbing first place in the annual DC list and beating out the usual winner, Paul Pisano, by 2 species.

Harry Armistead notes “I forgot the trip Liz and I made to Garrett County last July. This added Black-capped Chickadee, Common Raven, and Ruffed Grouse to my MD list which, if memory serves, should now be 344. Not exactly mega-ticks, but ... they were new, after birding in MD since 1949!

John Beetham tells us that he moved from DC to New Jersey in August so he won't be submitting anymore list submissions for awhile. Our condolences, John. We hope you're at least close to Cape May!

Tyler Bell reminisces that “the Say's Phoebe incited a death march from at least seven of us on a local Audubon field trip. Bill Hubick's phone rang when we were at the beach at Calvert Cliffs State Park which is 2 miles from the parking lot. We all reassembled at the pasture where the phoebe was flycatching, making for lots of jokes.”

Mike & Joy Bowen note that “We had some great trips in 2007 — to Louisiana in April for the ABA meeting, to California's Sierra Nevada Mountains in June, and 5 weeks in Australia from late September to early November. But there's nothing quite like birding at home in Maryland, especially in the ‘home county!’ Most of the new birds this year came on a late winter pelagic trip. The Long-eared Owl was courtesy Bob Ringler. One of these years I am going to have to stay home and work on some Maryland County lists. I've lived in Maryland for almost 40 years and am listed in only a pathetic five counties!!”

Gwen Brewer tells us what a great pleasure it was to get closeup looks at Thick-billed Murre without the pain of losing (repeatedly) the contents of her stomach. Bob Ringler agrees with you, Gwen, though we did hear that the mere sight of all that water had him a bit green around the gills...

Jim Brighton's high point was finally hitting 300 species of birds in Worcester County. Of course he modestly passes over his amazing accomplishment described here by Bill Hubick: “His goal was to photograph as many as possible of the Delmarva Peninsula's birds, mammals, reptiles, amphibians, butterflies, dragonflies, and damselflies. Braving heat, cold, rain, snow, ticks, and mosquitoes—and dragging his girlfriend and friends along with him—he documented an impressive 397 species.” Great year, Jim!!!!

Diane Ford notes that she wasn't able to get out as much birding in 2007 but that she still managed to add 5 new species to her Montgomery County list and 1 new species, Long-eared Owl, to her MD list!

David Gersten, another first-time reporter to the List Report, tells us “I topped 400 ABA-area species in one year for the first time in 2007. Lots of local birding in MD, DC and VA, and trips to Oregon, Colorado, Florida, Massachusetts, and California made this my best ‘big-year’ ever and my best overall birding years in over a decade.”

Matt Hafner reports the highlights of his year: “Since I didn't live in the state for 10 months my highlights include: 1) adding over 90 ticks (to his various MD and county lists), 2) staying ahead of Hans Holbrook in the State List, 3) keeping pace with Jim Stasz in Harford County, and 4) finding a first state record, except that it was in VA. I'm looking forward to more MD birding time this year, but since I don't even know where we'll be living by the end of year, I'm not so sure.”

Joe Hanfman, reporting this year for the first time, notes that “My yard is a wooded secluded lot in Columbia, MD. It is certified by the National Wildlife Federation. I have had 21 breeding species including Eastern Screech Owl.”

Elaine Hendricks, also reporting for the first time, tells us “This past year was the first in decades that I kept any lists other than a life list. I had a great time traveling all over the state, tracking down some of the species that I had previously seen only in Delaware or Virginia (or beyond). I don't know the exact number, since I never kept very good records before, but I estimate that I added about 45 species to my Maryland life list in 2007. Along the way, I also saw a few really great life birds, such as the Long-eared Owl in Carroll County and the Thick-billed Murre in Ocean City. It's been a memorable year!

Rob Hilton reports that he added four new species in Maryland, three new ones in DC, and four new species in Montgomery County. Way to go, Rob!

Mark Hoffman's trenchant analysis of 2007: “It was a year of reversion to the mean (after three banner years) as I had but a single add - the long awaited Bicknell's Thrush. Unfortunately I missed the Say's Phoebe in Montgomery County (the day I finally added Buff-breasted Sandpiper in Worcester), because my cell phone was broken. Such are the vagaries of state listing! There should be another one soon." Spoken like the true optimist he is...

Hans Holbrook, carefully avoiding comments on his fellow birders, notes that he set a new year record for Washington County, his new home.

Parke John notes a few totals NOT represented in the List Report: "feeder list—42, birdbath list—53, and Elk Neck State Park list—200.

Hank Kaestner added 2 new species to his Maryland list this past year (now at 367) and 3 new species to his Baltimore County list (326). He rather offhandedly noted that his World List now stands at 6,820 species.

Ray Kiddy, tells us that he had "an amazing six species added in Allegany County in 2007 - after not adding any in 2006." Ray now has 257 species in Allegany County!

Ellen Lawler of Salisbury tells us that "I added a lovely Bay-breasted Warbler to my yard, Wicomico, and Maryland lists."

Nancy Magnusson, reporting for the first time in a few years, notes that her Schooley Mill Park list in Howard County, now stands at 178 species out of 188 documented there over the years.

Tom Marko, yet another first-time reporter, notes that his Blue Mash Nature Trail list in Montgomery County now stands at 157 species!

Carol McCollough write: "Our place on Marumscro Creek in Somerset County is a bounty of owls, marsh wrens, Virginia rails, raptors, and brown-headed nuthatches, plus a ~3000 robin roost in winter. The robins provide snacks for the 4 Cooper's hawks that squabble over pecan tree perching rights in the front yard. At St. Michaels we fledged another screech owl. I took my new kayak down the Nassawango in May with 3 girlfriends, to the sounds of prothonotaries and great-crested flycatchers. I had a fabulous August day with Harry Armistead along Elliot Island Road, and a somewhat tedious but still life-producing pelagic with Sea Life Paulagics, to keep the Maryland list ticking upward! I may begin a list of the inappropriate places I have attempted to take a Prius while birding."

Lou Nielsen writes telling us of his trip to Utah, but we don't really want to hear about that. Just kidding, Lou!!!! "This year I took a trip to my birthplace in Northern Utah to see the birds I had never even noticed. A great week birding Box Elder and Cache Counties, and that most magical of places, Tony Grove Lake, adding 14 species to my life list."

Peter Osenton reports the highlights of his year: "Cumulative Yard List: I got one brand new bird, a male Summer Tanager. 2007 Year Yard List: A good year for my annual year yard list with a total of 95. I missed a few migrants that kept me from going over 100 (only done twice in the 10 years I've live here). But, I had 8 Rusty Blackbirds (3rd record only, and 1st fall record), plus, Pine Siskin (3rd record only) to help make up for some of the misses. Cumulative Work List: I added an American Golden Plover to my work list at Patuxent Wildlife Research Center. Dorchester County List: I added 9 new species to this list during the MOS Convention. Howard County List: 2 new species added: a fly over Glossy Ibis (during May count), and, a Yellow-crowned Night-Heron. Prince George's County List: one new species added on 7/22/07, An immature White Ibis at Merkle WMA."

New reporter Michael Ostrowski tells us "My goal for 2007 was 200 MD birds which I reached in mid December at Blackwater NWR (Golden Eagle). I then surged to 211 helping my brother reach 200. I got 63 new MD birds. The most exciting moment was probably when I spotted the WW Crossbill an hour into my half hour lunch break. My goal for 2008 is 1150 (=23*50) total ticks and 175 Montgomery County birds (I'll be moving there soon)."

Mike's brother, Robert Ostrowski, also a new reporter, adds: "A few things that I'm proud of: 1) for the vast majority of the year I was without motorized vehicle transportation, so many of my year birds were seen by walking or riding a bicycle, 2) my photo list is entirely from December 25 to Jan 5 (considering I still haven't photographed many common species, 54 isn't too bad), and 3) this is my first year list and I was able to reach my goal of 200 MD birds. Probably my 'best' bird that I found on my own (i.e. discounting the WW Crossbill, N. Shrike, etc.) was a Greater White-fronted Goose."

Joy Peters, ANOTHER new reporter tells us: "I finally 'caught the bug' and decided to list by counties. Not only have I learned something of the geography of Maryland—my home state for nearly 30 years—but it has added a whole new dimension to my birding enjoyment. Since July, my husband and I have been chasing all over the state after House Sparrows and American Crows, Common Grackles, and Turkey Vultures that up until now seemed rather mundane. Suddenly those junk birds have become a real find as I have relentlessly pursued my first closeout bird. So, watch out, Jim Stasz! In 2008 I hope to finally snag an American Crow in Calvert County for County Closeout Bird #1!

Paul Pisano talks about his 2007 highlights: "My 2 most memorable birding experiences for 2007 were in the soon-to-be developed area of Poplar Point, DC, along the Anacostia River. The first experience was on April 28th, when Rob Hilton, Lisa Shannon & I flushed my "most wanted/most expected" addition to the DC list - a Least Bittern. Then to top it off, we flushed an American Bittern just 5 minutes later in the same small "wetland" (reclaimed Metro right-of-way). The second experience was on the DC Christmas Count, when our group found 14 Wild Turkeys on the grounds of the old Architect of the Capitol. Who'd have thought one could find such birds so close to downtown DC?"

Danny Poet thanks Bill Hubick for telling him about the Least Bittern in Queen Anne's County last spring. Danny now has 250 species in Queen Anne's!

Kyle Rambo notes that "I didn't pick up any new birds in St. Mary's County in 2007 but I did manage a few in neighboring Charles and Calvert Counties."

Derek Richardson tells us "Although not as spectacular as our 2006 Inca Dove, it was nice to add Nashville Warbler and Pine Siskin to my yard list in 2007 (along with 28 other species). In October I finally made it to Florida as a birder, adding 12 lifers, including Florida Scrub-Jay.

Bob Ringler's Bicknell's Thrush was his first life bird in Maryland since 1990!

Arlene Ripley moved to Tucson, AZ, in mid-2007 and sent me the following note: "It just occurred to me that I didn't send in my Maryland total count (and, I guess, my Maryland final count) up through mid-2007. Since we departed in mid-July, I don't have any other category to report but I'd like to update my Maryland total to 318.

Thanks." Arlene, we will all miss you! Have a great life in Tucson!

Les Roslund of Talbot County had this to add: "While I was closing in on species number 200 for Talbot County (ed. note: for the year—Les has 264 species in total in Talbot) in early December, a group of Fox Sparrows showed up beside my home driveway to give me that 200th bird. Eventually as many as four were seen at that feeding station. Perhaps they did not realize that I only needed one of them for the count!"

Steve Sanford reports "My best new Maryland bird by far was the Red Phalarope in Dorchester County, which I saw quite well. Best new home county species was the Northern Shrike in Baltimore County—I had missed the one in 1984. Otherwise I had quite a rash of being one day late for Maryland rarities in 2007." Sigh, haven't we all, Steve...

Fred Shaffer tells us that "my highlights for 2007 included the Black-headed Gull and Mourning Warbler at Schoolhouse Pond, the close Dovekies and Puffins on the December pelagic, and the Cromwell Valley Northern Shrike."

Kurt Schwarz notes he added three new species to his yard list and that of the 62 species he photographed this year, "most are bad."

Jeff Shenot, reporting from Prince George's County, tells us "this was my best year by any measure! I tried a 'big day' this spring on May 2, and got 76 species at home. Highlights this year included 17 new species and many other exciting finds: American White Pelican, Northern Goshawk, Virginia Rail, Semi-palmated Sandpiper, Barn Owl, Northern Saw-whet Owl, Yellow-bellied Flycatcher, Least Flycatcher, Warbling Vireo, American Pipit, Nashville Warbler, Chestnut-sided Warbler, Black-throated Blue Warbler, Prairie Warbler, Bay-breasted Warbler, Lincoln's Sparrow, Bobolink, and Brewer's Blackbird. Some high group totals include: 22 species of waterfowl; 12 raptors (eagles, hawks and falcons); 5 owls; 7 woodpeckers; 8 flycatchers; 5 vireos; 25 warblers; and 12 sparrows. Also had an exceptional year for butterflies with 45 species despite the major drought this summer!"

Don Simonson, in Montgomery County, reports "yard bird #136 was a Sandhill Crane spotted by my wife Marcia."

Using the list report form as a means of communicating with the editor, Jo Solem announced that “Ross’s Goose was added as a new Howard County species in December 2007. Written and photographic documentation has been submitted to the MD/DCRC and it was seen by numerous observers so you are probably safe in adding it to the Howard County total.” So, hear ye, hear ye....Howard County’s new total is 293 species!

Ah, Jim Stasz... “My highlights were: 1) staying ahead of Matt Hafner in Harford ;-); 2) planting a hummingbird garden in May and having success in October; 3) adding Calliope Hummingbird to my Yard List!

Warren Strobel reports that his list for Schoolhouse Pond in Upper Marlboro is at 94 species and fast approaching 100!

Rick Sussman, in his FIRST REPORT SINCE 1994, tells us: “we moved to Woodbine, Carroll County, in June 2007 and I closed out my Ashton townhome community yard list at 170 species seen over 20+ years. This doesn’t include a Graylag Goose that was present a few days before we moved. My new yard list is already at 84 species and should continue to grow as I create new habitat in the yard. I’m also looking forward to a lot of birding time at Piney Run Park, very close to our new home, but I don’t think anything will beat the Northern Shrike that showed up briefly in our yard on December 14!”

Debbie Terry’s highlight for the year was the Northern Shrike she saw at Cromwell Valley Park, upping her Baltimore list to 292 species.

Matt Tillett, a first-time reporter, tells us “As 2007 was my first year birding, and county listing, nearly 200 of the 228 species of birds I saw this year were life birds, or birds I couldn’t identify in detail until this year. It’s really hard to pick out just one highlight, but I would have to rank seeing White Ibis in three counties pretty high. Seeing the Say’s Phoebe in Montgomery, and King Eider in St. Mary’s County were also pretty exciting. Hopefully in 2008, I will be over 50% in more than one county.”

Well, I guess this closes the books on 2007. Thanks to all of you who shared your list totals and your experiences. Here’s to a safe and birdy 2008 for all! I hope to hear from all of you (and more) next January.
